Essay from the Bold Pastor
#6: - The Naked Great King-

The champagne is poured into the glass to the brim right next to the dressed glamorous hostess at the exclusive club in Tokyo Azabu. Ten pieces of 10,000 yen bill were set up under the glass instead of coaster. It's a game to get all of it when it's bottoms up. Needless to say, the hostess tries to empty the glass by any means. The former president of the major paper company Daio-paper (which means Great King paper) Idaka Igawa watches the scene with a smile.

In September 2011, by proof of disclosure that he loaned an unsecured 10 billion Yen($100 million) for no financing reason, he was arrested and charged with breach of trust. As a result of being arrested, the incredible private life of this 3rd generation founder elite of playing around and gambling away 5 million yen a day or winning 1 million yen from playing rock paper scissors was revealed. For his inauguration party as CEO, he invited high profile people such as former prime minister Yoshihiro Nakazone and Uno Kanda. It seems that his way of life has made him a celebrity amongst these people.

It is surprising that he went to a cram school in Tokyo from his home in Ehime-prefecture which is 500 miles away from Tokyo when he was in junior high. His employees saw his life style and made fun of him by calling him "The naked Great King". However, just by looking at him and his habits, he was not a stupid man. He was a business elite who graduated from Tokyo University's law school. As a business man, he not only made up the deficit and turned it positive, but he also dragged the fair trade commission into hostile TOB and broke off negotiations yet performed corporate governance.

Bible shows
"You say, 'I am rich. I have everything I want. I don't need a thing!' And you don't realize that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked."Revelation3:17,NLT

Christ as God warns, first off know a folly of yourself and get true wealth without being "naked" by believing in God.
